Young adult dating violence is a big problem, affecting youth in every community across the nation. Learn the facts below.

Too Common
- Nearly 1.5 million high school students nationwide experience physical abuse from a dating partner in a single year.¹
- One in three adolescents in the U.S. is a victim of physical, sexual, emotional or verbal abuse from a dating partner, a figure that far exceeds rates of other types of youth violence.²
- One in 10 high school students has been purposefully hit, slapped or physically hurt by a boyfriend or girlfriend.³
- One quarter of high school girls have been victims of physical or sexual abuse.⁴

Why Focus on Young People?
- Girls and young women between the ages of 16 and 24 experience the highest rate of intimate partner violence -- almost triple the national average.⁵
- Violent behavior typically begins between the ages of 12 and 18.⁶
- The severity of intimate partner violence is often greater in cases where the pattern of abuse was established in adolescence.⁷
- About 72% of eighth and ninth graders are "dating".⁸

Long-lasting Effects
- Violent relationships in adolescence can have serious ramifications by putting the victims at higher risk for substance abuse, eating disorders, risky sexual behavior and further domestic violence.⁹
- Being physically or sexually abused makes teen girls 6x more likely to become pregnant and twice as likely to get an STI.¹⁰
- Half of youth who have been victims of both dating violence and rape attempt suicide, compared to 12.5% of non-abused girls and 5.4% of non-abused boys.¹¹

Dating Violence and the Law
- Eight states currently do not include dating relationships in their definition of domestic violence. As a result, young victims of dating abuse often cannot apply for restraining orders.¹²
- New Hampshire is the only state where the law specifically allows a minor of any age to apply for a protection order; more than half of states do not specify the minimum age of a petitioner.¹³
- Currently only one juvenile domestic violence court in the country focuses exclusively on teen dating violence.¹⁴

Lack of Awareness
- Only 33% of teens who were in a violent relationship ever told anyone about the abuse.¹⁵
- Eighty one percent of parents believe teen dating violence is not an issue or admit they don’t know if it’s an issue.¹⁶
- A teen’s confusion about the law and their desire for confidentiality are two of the most significant barriers stopping young victims of abuse from seeking help.¹⁷
